DRUNK GUY: "Burns an' Nobles is my favorite bookstore! I love how ya' got rid of all them books and replaced em' with As-Seen-On-TV products! Btw. I'm looking for a Chia Pet shaped like Larry the Cable Guy. All the ones ya' have right now look like that Shakespeare fella."

ANGRY OLD LADY: "And just what do you mean that ordering an obscure knitting book from across the country will take 1-2 business days? Forget it...I'll just order it myself on Amazon. This is why you people are going out of business!"

A VENTI GREEN TEA FRAPPUCCINO,

AND A VERY LATE NIGHT LAST NIGHT.

EMERICAL TRANSPORT

AUTHOR; "Hi. I'm an extreme-niche author who self-published in the cheapest way possible. I wrote an e-book that's only available on Kindle. Anyway, I'd like to schedule a book signing for tomorrow."

BOOKSELLER ON PHONE: (Loudly, so the elderly caller can hear) "Sir, I assure you...the rabbit

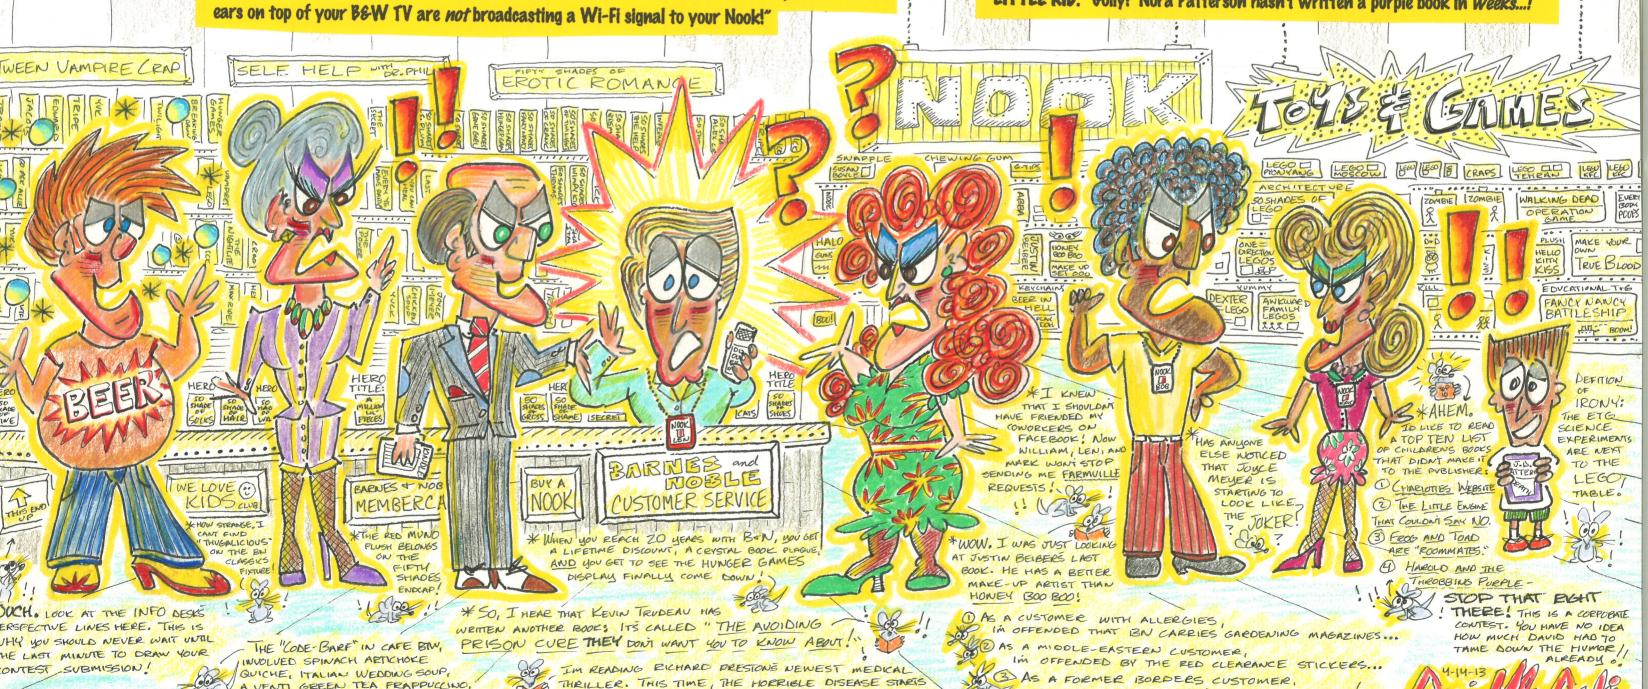

RED HAIRED CUSTOMER: "This is ridiculous! How can you not have my brother's—cousin'scoworker's-roommate's-former hairstylist's unicorn poetry book from the early 1980s? It's a best seller!"

MANAGER: "There's a Code-Brown in the bathroom, a Code-Yellow in kids, a Code-Barf in the Cafe lobby, and a Code-the-District-Manager-just-walked-in at Cashwrap.

BOOKSELLER: "Po you have time to help a customer who wants the SparkNotes for Fifty Shades of Grey? I have to troubleshoot a 1st Edition Nook that was bought at Best Buy.

IM OFFENDED THAT BN IS STILL OPEN

lly! Nora Patterson hasn't written a purple book in weeks...!

WITH THE SPIT ON THE THOMAS THE TRAIN TABLE